Vaccination Against Smallpox Required for Entering School

(Fifth of a Series.)
By Dr. George C. Ruhland
Health Officer, District of Columbia
Although in most of the world smallpox is still a menace, we are inclined to look on it with complacency, because the community is protected by compulsory smallpox vaccination, and because of the small number of cases reported here in Washington for more than 15 years.
A recent smallpox scare sent hundreds scurrying to the health departments and private physicians for vaccination against smallpox.
In the District, as in most other localities, evidence of a recent vaccination against smallpox is required for entrance into school. It is, therefore, urged that vaccination against this disease be successfully accomplished prior to entrance to school.
1. What is the nature of smallpox vaccination?
This is a simple procedure which ordinarily leaves a very small scar when successful. Ordinarily, no dressing is necessary and the effectiveness of the vaccine is promptly shown by a "reaction" of redness, then the small blister, and finally the vaccination scar.
2. Who should receive this vaccination?
Every child should be vaccinated in infancy, revaccinated on entering school, and revaccinated whenever an epidemic appears.

3. When should this vaccination be given?
One of the most authoritative groups of children's specialists states: "Vaccinate as early in life as possible." No child should be permitted to go beyond three years of age without such vaccination.
4. What results are accomplished by this vaccination?
The child, or adult, is protected for a considerable period of time against one of the most serious epidemic diseases known to man.
5. Who should give this vaccination?
Your physician, either at his office or in your home, or at a Health Department clinic.
The immunization clinic at Polk Health Center, Seventh and P streets N.W., is open at 3 p.m. every Tuesday.
The Southwest Health Center immunization clinic is open at 3 p.m. every Wednesday.
Infants and pre-school children who are not under the care of a private physician should register for health supervision, which includes immunizations in the Health Department's child welfare clinics.

(Tomorrow: Dr. Ruhland concludes his series with a discussion of typhoid.)

$32,115 Estate Left By Winchester Man

Special Dispatch to The Star
WINCHESTER, Va., Sept. 2.—Thomas J. Trier, a former city street and water superintendent, but in more recent years employed by the National Fruit Product Co. as an apple scales weigher, left an estate valued at $32,115, of which $10,000 was in currency found in the house in which he lived. A report to that effect has been filed in Corporation Court.

Mr. Trier was a native of Winchester and a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Trier. He lived with his sister, Mrs. L. L. Bell, at the old Trier homeplace here.
